

To whom it may concern:

Eat shit and die. How could you possibly ~~see~~ see fit to take away a class that has provided so much joy for so many, replacing it with habitual book work.

Habitual bookwork? Really?

Which one of you priddling, shot-bubbling numbskulls came up with that? Just because you have never had an engaging class doesn't mean others can't, much in the same way that you never having a significant other won't effect the general population.

I hope that the next time you are sitting in your mom's basement by yourself, picking the lint from your belly button and sniffing

It, you will realize not only how drab and pointless your own existence is, but also how miserable you have made many innocent people.

You have betrayed education,
and you shall feel ashamed.

Oh, and one more thing:

Eat shit and die.
